

Within the respective packages, there should be a DB file that controls all DB related code for that package. There should be a startup Proc that looks to see if required tables are populated.